The B.C. government is set to unveil its new budget Tuesday afternoon, and the challenges of climate change the province faces are expected to be the main focus.

Finance Minister Selina Robinson will deliver the budget starting at 1:30 p.m. PT.

Robinson told a pre-budget news conference on Monday that the realities of climate change hit the province over the past year with deadly heatwaves, wildfires and storms that caused major flooding and infrastructure damage across southern B.C.
